MARSIK INSTALLATION

Although the MARSIK project is still far from complete, a major milestone has been achieved with the hardware installation and commissioning of building facilities.

2. Accordingly, at this point in the project I would like to take the opportunity to thank all A Branch staff involved for the commitment and support they have given to the MARSIK project to date. As with all large, complex projects this one has had its share of unanticipated problems. Nevertheless the commitment and good will of all staff involved has enabled them to be overcome without delaying the project schedule.

3. I would like to mention AF for his contribution to the contract negotiations, financial management and the establishment of a flexible payment programme, AFS for his invaluable support, especially regarding delivery arrangements, and AP and his staff for their efforts in bringing the works to fruition (and given the way works are undertaken in the Public Service this must be regarded as one of the more onerous management challenges!).

4. Last but certainly not least I would like to thank and his building operations staff for their support, adaptability, untiring co-operation in resolving problems, including many not in their direct area of responsibility, and the large amount of work put in over the weekend of the first and second of March to successfully achieve the complex interconnections between the computer and the building facilities.
